West Scavenger Hunt

1. University Center
University Center Building, the center of campus life, opened in spring 1991. This three-story facility houses admissions and records, an array of student-assistance programs, health services, student activities and the Delph Courtyard. Also found in UCB are food service, cashier and fee-payment services, student lounges (including billiards), an art gallery, a black-box theater, meeting rooms, and the La Sala, a divisible, multi-purpose auditorium/ballroom facility. The 7,000 sq. ft. Diablo Performance and Recreation Center is equipped with Precor cardio equipment, a full-body machine circuit, free weights, an aerobics/multi-use room, as well as shower and locker facilities. Visitors, students and staff dine here and shop in the bookstore at the northeast corner of UCB for ASU souvenirs, textbooks and supplies.

Q: What is the name of the dining facility for students that prepare entrees, sandwiches, salads, pizza, snacks, breakfast and desserts?

2. Delph Courtyard
The Delph Courtyard at the interior of the University Center Building is an inviting outdoor garden patio, accented by a colorful tiled water feature. Friends have been gathering for lunch or studying, and to unwind, since the courtyard was completed in spring 1991. Throughout the year, campus displays and cultural events, such as Black History and Hispanic Heritage celebrations, fill the courtyard with activity.

Q: Who was the Delph Courtyard named in honor of? What did they establish?
3. Faculty Administration Building (FAB)
Most faculty and administrative offices are located in this three-story building, which opened in spring 1991. Classrooms are located in the lower level of the east wing. The FAB central courtyard features an heirloom rose garden and annual flowerbeds and bowls among the outdoor tables and chairs. Students obtain one-on-one help with their speaking and presentation skills, including use of associated technology, at the Communication Assessment and Learning Lab in FAB’s lower level. The Copy Center, also in the lower level, offers students, staff and the public a variety of copy and digital printing services.

Q: What academic colleges are located in this building?

4. Plant Walk
The Plant Walk is a guided tour to introduce visitors to the drought-tolerant desert flora of the West campus. The Plant Walk identifies the specific location of each plant, botanical and common names, habitat and growth requirements. The walk is a good way to gather information on desert-loving flowers, shrubs and trees for arid Southwest landscaping and gardens.

Q: How many different plants are featured on the plant walk?

5. Lecture Hall (LECT)
The Lecture Hall, adjacent to Computer Lab/Computer Classroom building, offers the largest fixed-seating capacity on campus — accommodating up to 150 people. The hall was constructed and opened in 2003.

Q: Up to how many people does this lecture hall accommodate?
6. Classroom/Lab/Computer Building
The Classroom/Lab/Computer Building, with a distinctive notched roofline, contains general purpose and computer classrooms; science laboratories; studios for art, dance and music; offices for the New College Mathematical and Natural Sciences Division and the University Technology Office. The Statistics Lab is a computing and consultation center where students can use statistical software or receive technical assistance using the software. Students enrolled in specific Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College classes use the Intel Lab to work with multimedia materials. The building was built in two stages. Phase One opened in spring 1991. Phase Two opened in spring 2002, and received the “Best of 2004” award from the Southwest Contractors Association in the category of “Education Project/University.” The round walls of the CLCC Building surround a circular courtyard featuring dancing water spouts and a black marble, notched saucer, which spills water into a pool that flows down an 11-foot terraced spillway.

Q: How many students can the 1st floor classroom seat?

7. Fletcher Library (FLHLB)
ASU’s West campus library combines the service and values of a traditional library with a state-of-the-art approach to the Information Age. The Fletcher Library was dedicated in 1988 honor of the Robert L. Fletcher family, whose gift of property resulted in an endowment for the perpetual support of the library. It was the first building completed on campus and soon after received an Honor Award, the top recognition of design excellence from the Southern Arizona Chapter of the American Institute of Architects. A semi-circular reflecting pool graces the library’s front lawn.
The library’s collection, including more than 400,000 volumes, supports the West campus curriculum and features an extensive media collection. Group study rooms equipped with computers, projectors, individual study space, and a copy center are also available. The three-story library is open seven days a week during semester sessions.
Housed in the library’s lower level are the Learning Enhancement Center (a tutoring center for writing, math, science and Spanish) and Technopolis (a computing center offering students 123 individual computer stations and free tutoring in software skills and Web research).

Q: What is the name of the coffee shop located inside the main entrance to the library?
8. Sands Classroom & Lecture Hall (SANDS)
In addition to being one of the West campus' two primary classroom buildings, Sands houses the Information Systems Management Lab and the Sand Trap convenience store, which is located off the southeast corner of the courtyard. A rectangular pool with water fountains highlights Sands' west courtyard. The Sands Classroom building was named in honor of the Louis "Buzz" Sands, IV, family of Sands Chevrolet in 1991, after they established the Sands Chevrolet Scholarship Endowment with a $1 million gift.

What’ the name of the convenience store that accepts Maroon and Gold Dollars?

9. Kiva Lecture Hall
At the east end of Sands courtyard, Kiva Lecture Hall seats up to 100 using portable tables for classes. It can hold up to 180 using portable theater seating for lectures, multi-media presentations and periodic cultural events. The Kiva, a Pueblo Indian word for a ceremonial structure, opened in fall 1989.

Q: Where does the word “kiva” come from?

10. Las Casas Residence Hall
Las Casas, an innovative living-learning village, offers living arrangements for up to 414 residents and transcends the traditional college dormitory experience. Las Casas creates a welcoming, learning community for students’ academic and social development through faculty mentors, academic and social activities and on-site advising. Amenities include a swimming pool, volleyball court, computer lab, convenience store and fun activities for residents. Las Casas also offers full-service kitchens, Internet connections in every bedroom, basic cable television and private telephones.

Q: This complex has how many stories?
