What is the ASU Hispanic Mother-Daughter Program?

The Hispanic Mother Daughter Program is a five-year outreach program designed to raise the education and career aspirations of first generation students. HMDP is designed for both the student and their parent/guardian. Parents/Guardians are actively involved throughout the program and attend workshops with their student. Students who are selected into the program will gain leadership skills, academic support, preparation for college, and a stronger relationship with their parent/guardian.

Beginning in eighth grade and spanning the next five years, the program includes two components:

- Advising at each school with participants two times per academic year.
- Participants and parent/guardian attend four 2-hour evening workshops per academic year. Workshops occur on weeknights at the ASU Tempe location.

Both components are requirements if selected for the program. Participant and parent/guardian must commit to attend all programming from 8th grade through 12th grade.

Topics covered include: (subject to change)

- Commitment to higher education
- Four-year high school academic planning
- Leadership skill building
- Community and civic engagement
- Financial literacy
- Social preparedness
- College admission process
- Financial aid
- Scholarship
- Personal statement writing
- Introduction to college majors

Additionally, participants learn about the benefits and advantages of attending Arizona State University. Including the many resources available through Access ASU, ASU summer programs, and opportunities to network with ASU staff, faculty, and community leaders.

If you and your student would like to enhance your academic achievement and personal growth through a support network of school counselors, community leaders, and university professionals, apply to the ASU Hispanic Mother-Daughter Program.

Applications are due Wednesday, Feb. 14, 2018.
